Canon At 1 At1 Camera

The Canon AT-1 is a 35mm FD-mount single-lens reflex camera manufactured by Canon of Japan from December 1977. It was produced purely for export and was never sold in the home Japanese market. It is a version of the popular AE-1 but without the shutter-speed priority auto-exposure mode of that camera. The AT-1 features manual exposure only.

Canon AT-1 - Wikipedia

Canon is one of those wonderful companies that always listens to what their customers want, and the Canon AT-1 was for those people who loved the new streamlined compact design of the A-series but wanted individual exposure control like that of the FTb.

Canon AT-1 Review - Peter Vis

This is the camera that sparked an obsession with cameras that continues to this day. But first, let me introduce you to the camera... The Canon AT-1 is a 35mm SLR released by Canon in 1977. It is part of the long defunct, but still highly popular Canon FD system. The AT-1 uses the Canon FD mount and is a no frills, manual exposure only camera.
