Cinematography is all about the art of visual storytelling. Aside from skillfully operating a camera and setting up the lighting for every scene, it involves controlling what the viewer sees and how the image is presented to them — by choosing the right shooting techniques that best tell the story.

That's about it.

Changing the shutter angle is very limiting and looks odd anyway.

I've had to do it on the iris. Apparently

Deakins had to do it
that way on "1917" for some of those shots
going from inside to outside or the reverse.
